This book is a collection of messages from a mother to her daughter about living, laughing, and loving as time is running out. The messages are full of wisdom, humor, and love, and they offer a unique perspective on life and death.

The author, a mother of two, was diagnosed with a terminal illness in 2012. She was given just six months to live. In the face of her own mortality, she decided to write a series of letters to her daughter, sharing her thoughts on life, love, and loss.

The letters are a beautiful and moving tribute to the power of love. They are full of wisdom and insight, and they offer a unique perspective on the human experience. They are a reminder that even in the face of death, there is still hope and joy to be found.

The book is divided into three parts. The first part, "Living," is about the importance of living each day to the fullest. The second part, "Laughing," is about the power of laughter to heal and connect. The third part, "Loving," is about the importance of love in our lives.

The book is a must-read for anyone who is facing a difficult time. It is a source of hope, inspiration, and comfort. It is a reminder that even in the face of death, there is still life to be lived.
